RUSSIA

IN MEMORIAM SERGEY KISELEV

The first vice-president of the Union of Architects of Russia (UAR), Sergey Borisovich Kiselev passed away in Moscow on 9 May at the age of 56. His colleague and UIA Council Member Andrei Kaftanov paid him a fervent tribute in these terms:

"I am convinced that contemporary architecture just suffered an irreplaceable loss. In his projects he sought to break free from the banality of international architecture and at a complex time in our country's history he succeeded in giving a 'Russian' character to his personal interpretation of modernism. Sergey was a marvellous person who altruistically shared his knowledge, his experience, and his capacity for teamwork with his compatriots and foreign associates."

The UIA addresses its sincere condolences to his family, colleagues, and the UAR.
