THE INTERNATIONAL VELUX AWARD CELEBRATES ITS TENTH ANNIVERSARY AND LAUNCHES THE 2014 EDITION

VELUX group is launching the 2014 edition of its biennial award to encourage and challenge students of architecture to explore the theme “Light of Tomorrow” in its widest sense, and create a deeper understanding of this rich and ever-relevant source of energy and illumination. The award seeks to encourage and expand how daylight is utilised in the built environment through an open-minded and experimental approach, to stretch the boundaries of daylight in architecture in relation to aesthetics, functionality, sustainability, and the interaction between buildings and their environment. The UIA has supported IVA since its creation in 2004. The deadline for registration in the 2014 edition is 3 March 2014, and projects must be submitted electronically before 2 May 2014.

TWO YOUNG STUDIOS WIN THE 2013 BARBARA CAPPOCHIN PRIZE

The A2M social housing complex in Ragusa, Sicily, won the 2013 Barbara Cappochin prize for Gabriele Sciveres. The project was unanimously selected by the jury who saw not only a beautiful piece of architecture overlooking the Mediterranean, but also an aesthetic, social and cultural decision that confirms architecture’s capacity to provide solutions to the fundamental problems of modern life.

The Venetian team from Studio Tamassociati, led by architects Massimo Lepore, Raul Pantaleo and Simone Sfriso won the Giancarlo Ius Gold Medal, which recognises innovation, sustainability, and high performance in the use of energies. The winning project is the Pediatric Emergency Centre in Port Sudan that utilises simple construction techniques to meet all the program requirements: comfort for both patients and hospital staff, thermal regulation, energy and water management.

BRUNO STAGNO AT THE WORLD ENERGY FORUM

The World Energy Forum took place at the United Nations headquarters in New York on 18 - 22 October 2013, with representatives from all the UN member states. This annual event aims to create a world where energy is secure, serving all nations and peoples around the world. According to its president Dr. Harold Hyunsuk Oh, the World Energy Forum’s mission is a moral quest that transcends all political or commercial interests. Costa Rican architect Bruno Stagno was invited to present several of his realisations as well as the work of the Tropical Architecture Institute that he directs in San José, during a plenary session at this year’s forum.

UIA RENEWS ITS PARTNERSHIP WITH THE WORLD URBAN CAMPAIGN

During the 9th session of the World Urban Campaign's steering committee, the International Union of Architects renewed its partnership with the campaign. UIA President Albert Dubler signed a memorandum of understanding with UN-Habitat Executive Director Joan Clos, in order to reaffirm and prolong UIA's mission as one of the principal partners. As part of its role, UIA will continue to sit on the steering committee and take part in working groups, events and activities organised as part of the campaign. UIA will also diffuse information about the campaign and gather knowledge and know-how from among its members to ensure a broad sharing of knowledge on campaign issues.

IN PORTUGAL EVERYONE HAS A RIGHT TO ARCHITECTURE

The Order of Architects of Portugal (OAP) elaborated a programme of manifestations around the country to celebrate World Architecture Day, in cooperation with its regional branches and cultural institutions that promote architecture. They analysed the theme of 'Culture-Architecture', focusing on architecture as a basic human right. The celebration was also an occasion to induct new honorary members to the Order, for their contribution to OAP's stated objectives. New honorary members include architects Alcinoüs Soutinho, Gonçalo Byrne, Michel Toussaint Alves Pereira, and Paulo Varela Gomes, and photographers Luis Ferreira Alves and Fort Sacavém for their Information System on Architectural Heritage (SIPA). The DOCOMOMO international association was also honoured.

DECLARATION BY SPANISH ARCHITECTS

The Superior Council of Spanish Colleges of Architects (CSCAE) celebrated World Architecture Day on 7 October 2013, with the publication of a declaration to defend and promote sustainable Spanish architecture. In line with the WAD theme 'Architecture-Culture' and the Hangzhou declaration entitled: Placing Culture at the Heart of Sustainable Development Policies, the Spanish declaration underlines the essential role of architecture in both culture and sustainability. Conscious of their role as both witnesses and actors in their era, the Spanish architects fully assume their direct implication in creating the heritage they will leave to the next generation. For this reason, they stress their determination to maintain Spanish architecture at the level of excellence it is known for worldwide, an architecture that integrates both technology and humanism into a single vision.

IN MEMORIAM LOUIS DE MOLL

Louis de Moll passed away on 15 October, 2013, in Gradyville (Pennsylvania) at the age of 89. A talented and prolific architect, he designed and realised numerous structures in Philadelphia and around the world as part of the Ballinger Company that he directed until 1986. He was president of the American Institute of Architects, and served as UIA president from 1972 to 1981. During his UIA mandate, he was committed to helping architects in developing countries and promoting their role in their home countries. A warm and attentive person, he received innumerable expressions of esteem and friendship in the countries he visited as UIA president. Louis de Moll was also a recognised painter and sculptor. He was recently awarded Philadelphia's Atheneum Prize for his work and contribution to the city. The UIA general secretariat sends his children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren, as well as his colleagues and friends, its most sincere condolences.

JOSEPH RYKWERT ROYAL GOLD MEDAL 2014

One of the 20th century's most prominent architectural critics, Joseph Rykwert, was selected for the 2014 RIBA Gold Medal to recognise his life's work. His first book, The Idea of a Town: The Anthropology of Urban Form in Rome, Italy and the Ancient World, published in 1963, definitively changed the classic understanding of the history of architecture and urban planning, at that time based on archaeological works, by laying the foundations for a new style of research where the human sciences play a predominant role. His works and teaching have influenced several generations of architects, and many of the most talented among them. The former gold medallists who supported his nomination include David Chipperfield, Frank Gehry and Renzo Piano. Upon hearing of his award, Joseph Rykwert stated, "What makes this gift twice as precious is that it comes not from my writer and critic colleagues, but from architects and builders".

DAVID CHIPPERFIELD PRAEMIUM IMPERIALE 2013

Following Henning Larsen in 2012, British architect David Chipperfield was awarded the 2013 Praemium Imperiale prize given by the Japan Art Association. A 1977 graduate from the Architectural Association, David Chipperfield worked with Richard Rogers and Norman Foster before opening his own studio in 1984. He is the author of remarkable and remarked upon structures such as the Neues Museum in Berlin, winner of the 2011 Mies Van der Rohe prize and the 2012 Stirling prize. He served as curator for the 2012 Venice Biennale on the theme "Common Ground". David Chipperfield received the prize for architecture in this series of awards covering several artistic domains. Other 2013 recipients include Michelangelo Pistoletto for painting, Anthony Gormley for sculpture, Placido Domingo for music, and Francis Ford Coppola for film.
