UIA WOMEN IN ARCHITECTURE
"International activity allows you to have a vision with a global perspective, analyze the challenges from a broader and relative context, and also understand the potential of globalization without neglecting the local, essential to land and scale the measures and proposals."

"For me, international volunteer engagement has been an important key to a worldwide network of people with the same interests as me. If you want to work voluntarily and international, I think it is important that it is a question near your own heart. Then the work is not a burden, but a joy."

REGION II

DENIZ INCEDAYI (TURKEY) & LIZA SIOLA (GREECE)

"I had the chance to get to know many architects and architectures of different countries and cultures, which I find very valuable for the vision of an architect."

"As I come from a small country, I soon realized that it was absolutely necessary to be part of the international society of architects, as a one way path to collaboration and exchanging experience with our colleagues around the world."

REGION III

NADIA SOMEKH (BRAZIL) & PATRICIA MORA MORALES (COSTA RICA)
"Be resilient. It's not an easy task, but we, as social actors, have the duty to ensure diversity in all possible instances if we want to accomplish effectiveness in both local and global policies and efforts."

"What I like about international activities is sharing experiences with different cultures and learning about their interpretation and resolution of similar problems that we have in our country and region."

REGION IV

IN-SOUK CHO (KOREA) & YOLANDA DAVID-REYES (PHILIPPINES)

"At every moment, in every circumstance and from everyone you meet, there are always things to learn. Do not hesitate to contribute your time, wisdom, knowledge and experience!"

"Actually, I enjoyed my first encounter with the other leaders of the architectural societies around Asia. I felt very comfortable and welcomed because of the warm and special treatment I received."
