

Dr Wei Yang, President of the Royal Town Planning Institute (UK)

Planning a Harmonious Tomorrow for Our Future Generations – the unique role of women town planners

The speak will discuss the unique role women town planners can play in creating a harmonious tomorrow for future generations. The fundamental objective for the planning profession is to create a balanced system for people, nature and society to coexist in harmony. It is important to plan and design places which are sensitive to all people's needs. The health and well-being of our future generations should be considered as one of the key priorities in the decision-making process. As the world moves into a post-pandemic recovery period, the speak will explore how we can plan the world we need with a reimagined approach of planning led by women town planners.