

Aliye P.Celik, PhD

Chair Consortium for Sustainable Urbanization

Women, climate change, sustainable urbanization and the United Nations

Today's challenges for our globe are multifaceted, ranging from climate change to uncontrollable movement of people, from conflicts to income inequalities as well as sexism and racism. Through sustainability of the urbanization process it is possible to reduce carbon emissions that accelerate climate change. There is an interaction between all these factors. The question is how women can have a positive impact on climate change through design.