

UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards Regulations

Our children will build the future. It is important to prepare them for this. Making our children aware of the built environment, architecture, urbanism and sustainable development is a top priority. Fostering their knowledge in these fields will ensure their development as responsible citizens, able to make their voices heard and influence the political, economic and social strategies that will shape their cities and their environment.

It is when they are young, open-minded and full of imagination that it is necessary and easy to give them these tools. They will use them later to find the best balance between their dreams, the desire for an ideal living space and an achievable one in the real world.

The UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme Golden Cubes Awards celebrates those who prepare our children and young people for this task. The Awards also helps to stimulate new projects that share this objective.

Imagining the cities of the future is an urgent and vital challenge. Educating those who will create them is an issue we should address now.

Award Organisers

The UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards are being organised by the UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme www.architectureandchildren-uia.com.

Award Objectives

To recognize, encourage, and support individuals and organizations that lay the foundations of an architectural culture and help children and young people, from pre-school up to and including the age of 18, to understand architectural design and the processes by which our environment is shaped. This will help them, as adult citizens, to participate effectively in the creation and intelligent use of high quality architecture that is humane, sustainable and respectful of its context.

Award Categories

There are 4 Award Categories:

School Award

This award is open to any school providing general education in accordance with the state or national curriculum to children and young people (schools providing specialist or vocational education in the fields of art, design, architecture or related fields are not eligible in this category).

Institution Award

This award is open to museums, galleries, foundations, associations and other organisations, either singly or in collaboration with others, in any field (schools providing specialist or vocational education in the fields of art, design, architecture or related fields may enter in this category).

Written Media Award

This award is open to individuals and organisations working in the field of written media (articles, books, magazines or non audio-visual educational tools).

Audio-visual Media Award

This award is open to individuals and organisations working in the field of audio-visual media (documentaries, films, TV programmes or audio-visual educational tools).

Entrants and National Member Sections should note that a submission for any particular activity or product might be entered for one award only. However, an entrant producing more than one activity or product may submit separate entries for each of them.

Brief

Entrants are invited to submit entries describing activities (courses, classes, events, etc.) or products (publications, tools, games, kits, guides, films, computer programmes, etc.) designed to teach children and young people about architecture and the built environment.

2

The UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards process is not a 'competition' for which entrants are expected to produce new projects. Instead, they are invited to present submissions relating to an activity which is currently active, or an event which has taken place or a product that has been produced at any time between March 2020 and the submission deadline of 15 March 2023.

Award Criteria

The following issues should be considered by the entrants in preparing their submissions. Not every criterion must be met.

- Are the educational objectives – what the children will learn and what skills they will acquire - clearly stated?
- Does it increase their understanding of architecture?
- Does it support their understanding of social, economic and ecological sustainability?
- Does it encourage sensitivity, creativity or critical thinking?
- Is it fun?
- Does it have the support of the educational authorities or of the community?
- Does it involve collaboration or interdisciplinary partnerships?
- Can it be implemented on a continuing basis?

Award Process: The Award Process will have two phases:

A. National Process

Each UIA National Member Section participating in the Award will:

1. Identify and mandate the professional organisation responsible for organising the national nomination process
2. Inform the UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme of its participation via e-mail.
3. Promote and publicise the UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards on a national scale and issue a wide public call for entries (schools, institutions, individuals, governmental related bodies and NGO's).
4. Appoint a National Jury.
5. Select one entry for nomination for each Award (School, Institution, Written Media, Audio- visual Media).
6. Send the nominated entries to the UIA following the instructions below.
7. Issue a press release announcing the national nominated entries.

Entries from non UIA member sections should be collected and nominated by one local architectural organization to be sent to UIA following the instructions below.

Entries that are from other countries not engaged in a National Nomination Process shall contact the Co-directors for advice. They will be guided to another neighbor country alternatively assessed by a special committee with members from all 5 UIA Regions.

B. International Process

The UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme will arrange for:

1. Evaluation of all of the national nominated entries.
2. Selection by the International Awards Jury of one entry for each award.
3. Notification to all National Member Sections of the results.
4. Presentation of the UIA Architecture and Children Golden Cubes Awards during

Phase A. National Process

The juries for National Nominations will be appointed by the relevant National Member Sections. It is recommended that each National Jury should consist of 5 members (3 architects, 2 non-architects) and include some architects with experience in interdisciplinary activities and children's education and at least one education and/or media specialist. It is recommended also that the president of the jury is a public figure. It is believed that this will attract maximum publicity for the awards and for the nominated entries.

The National Jury shall select a maximum of one nomination for each award category to be submitted digitally by the Member Section to UIA Award Platform <https://uia.awardsplatform.com>.

National Member Sections who decide to run a National Nomination Process are requested to notify the UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme at the UIA General Secretariat at: uia@uia-architectes.org before June 1st 2022. National Member Sections may collaborate with other national organisations in organising a National Nomination Process. Prizes, if any, in the National Nomination Processes are at the discretion of each Member Section.

The organisation of the National Nomination Process and all costs related to it are the responsibility of the Member Section which organises it.

Nominations for the International Process can be made only by the National Member Section on the official UIA Award Platform. A National Member Section may submit only one Nomination for each Award Category.

Participating National Member Sections are urged to publicise the Awards as extensively as possible on the national levels, so as to support and encourage individuals and organizations providing Architecture and Children activities. Please note that all references to the Awards should use the full title: UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards.

Phase B. International Process

The International Awards Jury is appointed by the UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme and consists of:

- A public figure (President of the Jury);
- 4 UIA nominated architects (including Architecture & Children UIA Work Programme members) An education specialist/pedagogue;
- An education specialist.
- A media specialist.

Decisions of the Jury are made by majority vote. The decision of the Jury is final.

Publication of Entries

Winning and special mentioned entries will be exhibited in the UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme exhibition at the UIA Congress in Copenhagen and, together with the Jury's Report, will be published on the UIA BEE Website. The results will be published in UIA Newsletters and promoted through the international press and media.

Copyright and Consents

The official UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards Entry Form includes a declaration, to be signed by the Entrant or representative of the Entrant organization, that the project is the work of that individual or organization, that they hold the copyright and that they have obtained all necessary consents of publishing pictures with children from the parents, to its submission for the Award under the terms and conditions of the Award Regulations. Failure to sign the Entry Form incorporating this declaration will exclude the Entrant from the Awards scheme.

The UIA Architecture & Children Work Programme reserves the right to use, without remuneration or additional permit/s, images of the submitted posters (totally or partially) on its website and in exhibitions, publications and promotional material. The copyright of the original publication or programme of activity, which is the basis for the entry, rests with the entrants.

Persons Ineligible

No member of the UIA Architecture & Children Work Group, UIA Secretariat, UIA Commissions, Work Programmes or Committees, National or International Juries, concerned with the organisation of the Awards, shall be eligible to enter for the Awards.

Disqualification

Submission of the official registration form is an acceptance by the Entrants of all regulations of the Awards.

Submissions are excluded from the Awards if:

- The entry is received after the date named in the awards conditions.
- The entry does not comply with all of the conditions for the submissions listed above.
- The entrant does not comply with the conditions of eligibility.

It shall be a function of the organisers to decide on award eligibility and exclusion from the awards. The organisers' decision in these matters is final and no correspondence will be entered into in this regard.

Acceptance of Regulations

Submission of an entry for the UIA Architecture & Children Golden Cubes Awards constitutes acceptance by the entrant of the terms and conditions set out in these Regulations.
