

THE UIA 2022 INTERNATIONAL FORUM CONFIRMS THE FIRST SPEAKERS AND TICKETS GO ON SALE

Paul Karakusevic, Joan Clos, Sergio Magalhaes, Sara Topelson, Lluiz de Mello and Martha Thorne are the first confirmed speakers of the more than 60 international experts who will participate in the UIA 2022 International Forum 'Affordable Housing Activation: Removing Barriers', to be held in Madrid from May 18 to 20. New confirmations will be announced in the coming days that will make this meeting a referential global event.

The event, which has the collaboration of UN-Habitat, is organised by the CSCAE, and is supported by the Government of Spain, the Community of Madrid, the Madrid City Council and the COAM, seeks to transform the capital of Spain into the epicenter of the global debate on decent and adequate housing, with the aim of producing a multilateral declaration.

The congress envisages the creation of a collaborative, innovative, avant-garde, and paradigmatic framework that will activate the first global platform of data content and best practices on housing promoted by referential international experts and organisations. The initiative will function using unprecedented artificial intelligence for content management as well as interactive maps for data visualisation.

The UIA 2022 International Forum 'Affordable Housing Activation: Removing Barriers' invites all UIA Member Sections to join the movement by sharing situations in their contexts that can serve as case studies and organising side events with local stakeholders to stimulate debate around housing accessibility. (See the forms in the website)

Meet expert perspectives from different fields, far beyond architecture, and enjoy side events organised around the world in the framework of the UIA Forum at www.ahamadrid.com.
